

Register that Dress!

Make sure you and you alone wear your dress at a big event

Updated 7:15 PM EST, Wed, Jan 14, 2009

2 Comments Post a Comment

PRINT EMAIL SHARE

Want to know whether your dress is a standout? Or make sure you won't have a twin at an upcoming event?

Hoping some other gal doesn't wear the same gown as you to the inaugural balls? Well, there's a Web site that just might help you, but you have to watch...

Don't Wear What She's Wearing

Alex Wong/Getty Images

A couture Oscar de la Renta evening gown, a pair of matching Manolo Blahnik shoes, a Judith Leiber minaudiere crystal bag and a Henry Dunay emerald ring.

The Dress Registry is trying to help women avoid that embarrassing party mishap through a Website that allows women to register tthe dresses they are planning to wear to an event. Ooh, and it's fun to browse the gowns, too.